Brian Watson Promoted to Senior Property Accountant at Zocalo

Denver (January 16, 2019) – Zocalo Community Development is pleased to announce Brian Watson has been promoted to Senior Property Accountant. Watson has been a valued team member since joining Zocalo as an accountant in 2017.

“Brian exemplifies Zocalo’s values and is always willing to help wherever needed,” said Paul Birnesser, Vice President of Accounting and Finance for Zocalo. “His impressive work ethic, positive attitude and dedication to achieving team goals have all led to this well-earned promotion.”

As Senior Property Accountant, Watson will be working on development draws, assisting with the monthly reporting and cross-training with Zocalo’s senior construction accountant. He will continue to manage all accounts payable for Zocalo and the company’s managed properties as well as assisting in the preparation of monthly construction draws.

“Being a part of the Zocalo family has been incredibly rewarding, and our shared sense of excitement for the work we do together motivates me daily,” said Watson. “I look forward to growing with the team and continuing to deliver exceptional service to Zocalo’s internal and external customers.”

Prior to joining Zocalo, Watson worked as a bookkeeper for a food cooperative, as well as a staff accountant for a firm in Honolulu, Hawaii providing outsourced accounting functions for clients. He attended the University of Hawaii at Manoa, where he received degrees in both Accounting and Human Resource Management.
